Dear Miss Demeacu:

Have you been in touch with Mr. Heffa recently?

You may recall my letter of recent date concerning a remarkable library on the history of labor relations which I recommended to the attention of Mr. Heffa, and Mr. English.

I should very much appreciate hearing from you regarding the status of these suggestions.

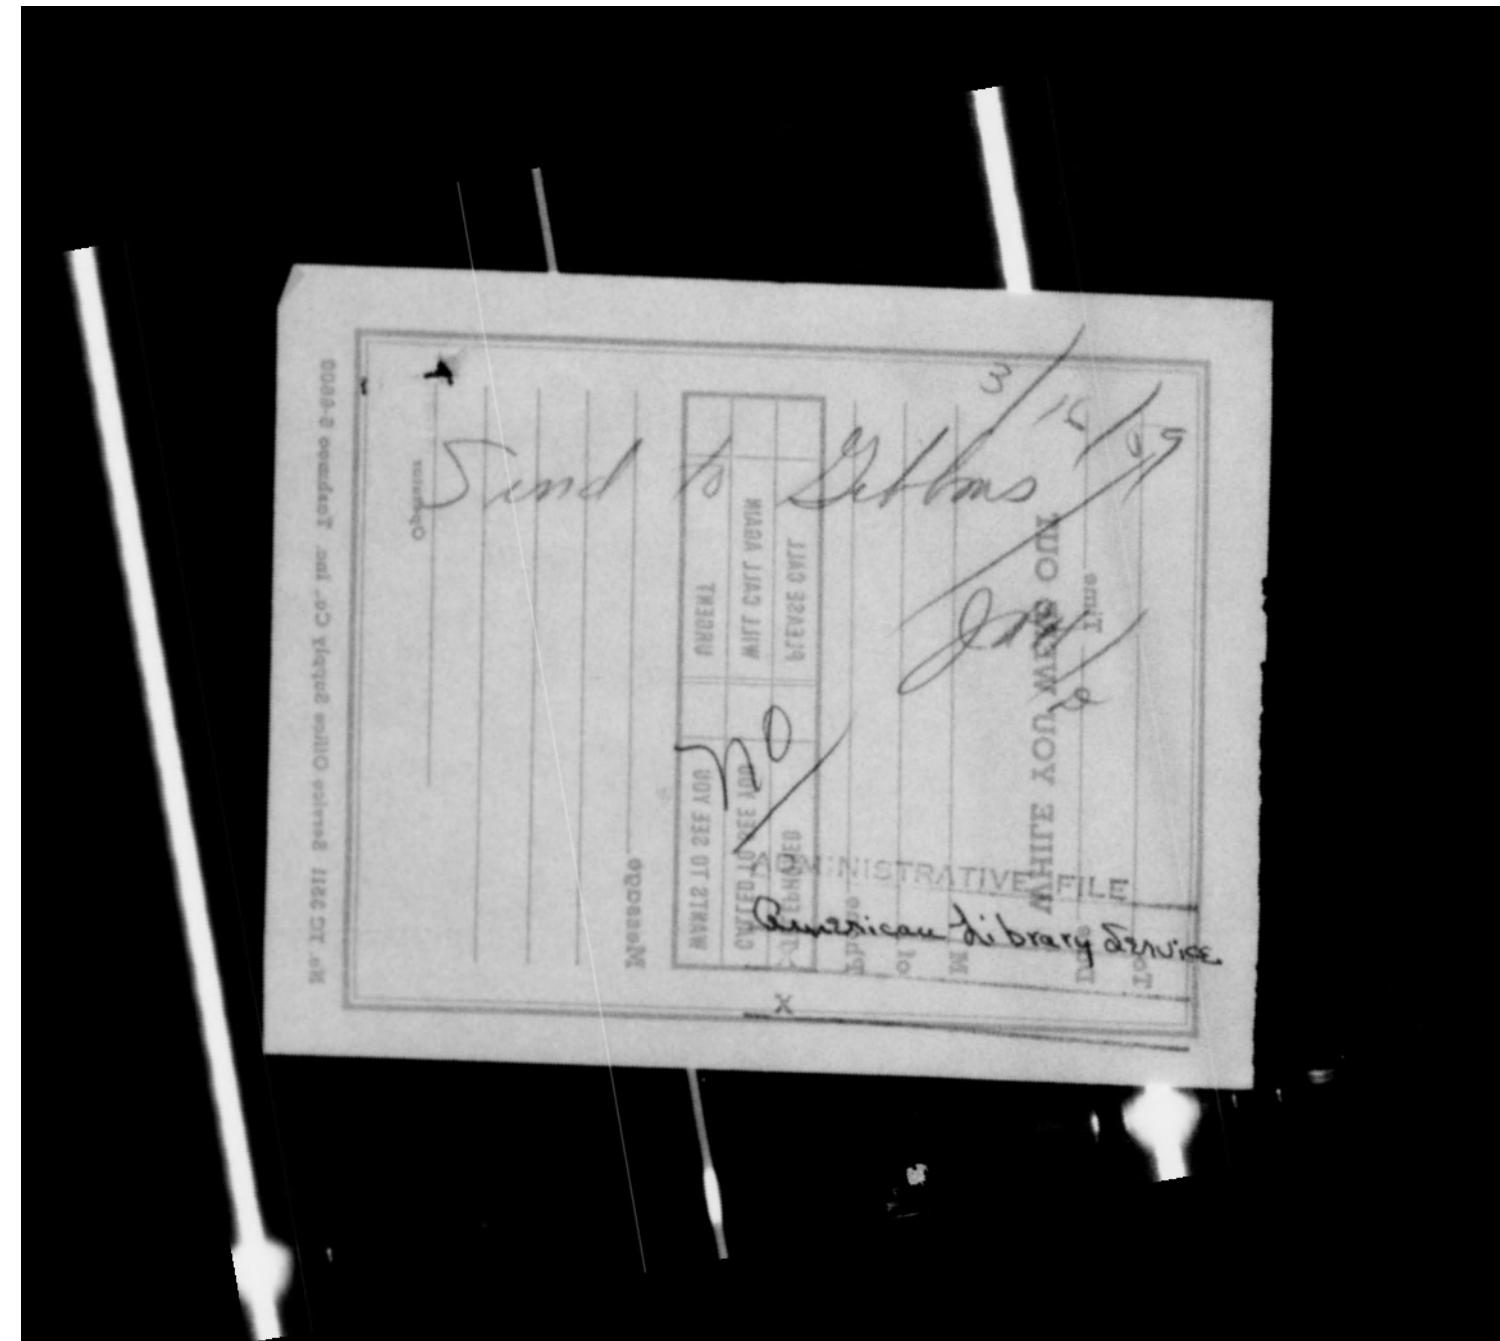

Very truly yours,

I also am enclosing a copy of a letter that I have just written to Mr. English which I also feel deserves the personal attention of Mr. Hoffa.

An early reply will be appreciated.

Dear Mr. English:

We are most grateful for your acceptance of the original manuscript that we submitted for your examination and approval.

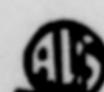

We have recently engaged in the preparation of the enclosed listing of books dealing with the History of Labor. I believe that if you will go over this list carefully, you will readily agree that this would make a fine library indeed for any organization in the field.

It is our hope to place this collection as a unit and with that thought in mind we are prepared to quote a special figure on that basis.

One idea that immediately comes to mind is that from the point of view of public relations a great deal of favorable publicity would be engendered if some National Union such as yours would see fit to place this collection in some institution library where it could be consulted by writers, historians as well as the general public as a basic source for original information and material.

If this idea could be put into effect I believe that the actual cost of the collection would be reduced appreciably because of the Federal Tax provisions that apply to cultural donations. In view of your current activities in Puerto Rico, I really feel that a library of this sort would be especially valuable and create an enormous fund of good will for all concerned.
